Meet your Hosts

Bruce Tyrrell AM and Pauline Tyrrell

Bruce Tyrrell isn't just a winemaker – he's a storyteller, historian, and one of the great characters of Australian wine. If you've ever caught one of his talks, you'll know you're in for more than just a few tasting notes; expect laid-back wit, some big wine opinions, and a few insider yarns from the vineyard.

The Tyrrell family has been making wine in the Hunter Valley since 1858, and Bruce represents the fourth generation at the helm. To say that Bruce has helped shape the Australian wine industry is an understatement. He's flown the flag for Hunter Valley wines at home and abroad, picking up just about every major wine award since 2006 – including, our favourite, being named a Hunter Valley Living Legend.

But perhaps Bruce's proudest achievement is seeing the next generations take the reins. His children – Jane, John, and Christopher – are guiding Tyrrell's into the future. And with grandchildren now toddling through the vineyard, the sixth generation is already getting their boots dirty.

Through it all, Bruce continues to share his passion for wine with the same warmth and humour that's made him a favourite on the speaker circuit. Whether you're in a tasting room or at a lecture, you'll walk away entertained, informed, and probably with a glass of something exceptional in hand.

David T. Peabody

When David T. Peabody first visited Craggy Range at the tender age of 12 and experienced the vineyards and winery firsthand, he knew immediately it was something he wanted to be involved in. But when David told his grandfather, Terry Peabody, of his aspirations a few years later, he had to prove he was serious. David accepted his grandfather's challenge and has taken on several roles, starting from the ground up within the business, including roles in the vineyard, winery, sales, and marketing teams.

In November 2024, David T. Peabody was appointed Executive Director, marking the third generation of the Peabody family's involvement in the winery's governance. This appointment aligns with the family's commitment to a 1,000 year trust, ensuring the winery remains under family stewardship.

In 2022, he and his wife Annabelle welcomed the first Peabody to be born in New Zealand with the arrival of their daughter. The couple have since welcomed a second daughter, and David now enjoys life as a father to two little girls.
